New York Sender — Mr. Crittenden, after defining his position in adhering to his amended hill, adopted by the House in preference to the conference substitute now offered, invired the Senate impartially to do justice without recrimination and without sectional prejudice. Referring to the geographical position of Kentucke, he pointed out her interests as pseuliarly in favor of the maintenance of the I uson and of the preservation of cordiality among all sections. He concluded with an earnest appeal to all parties and sections to respect the magnificent proportions and desirny of the I usino, which already is recognized as among the great powers, but will soon be recognized as the greatest, if we avoid sectional attrice and petty causes of division.
